Right: "Now how did I do it last night?" Richard Cavallaro tries to think of the right solution.

Above: Examining pamphlets and brochures from various schools, Cynthia Parente and Judith O'Neil look ahead by taking advantage of Bishop Feehan's College Day.

Below: "All I want for Christmas is a knife!" growls Gary McNally to "Santa" Donald Lacourse as "mother" Rosemary Healy watches proudly.

Old memories new future

Alpha

We each brought ourselves to this school to grow, discover. . . to live.

We each arrived alone—not knowing exactly what to anticipate, not sure of situations we would find.

We all gathered in homerooms, at clubs, on teams, to muster a common spirit—a deep unity.

We learned our growth, our discoveries . . . our lives depended on a fresh start within ourselves . . . a new beginning in our school.

Omega

Throughout this year, we have experienced each other, each person's ideas, every moment's excitement.

Living through various events—each awaited, then suddenly slipping by, leaving only fond memories.

Living through term papers, math assignments, football victories, even long wished-for vacations.

Everything we planned became reality—fulfilling our expectations and then ending.

Alpha

We remember what we have learned.

We are able to feel what we have lived, those we have touched.

We have shared in something which we consider our own—a beginning that will never end in spirit, but only grow in time.

Morning dawns; day breaks

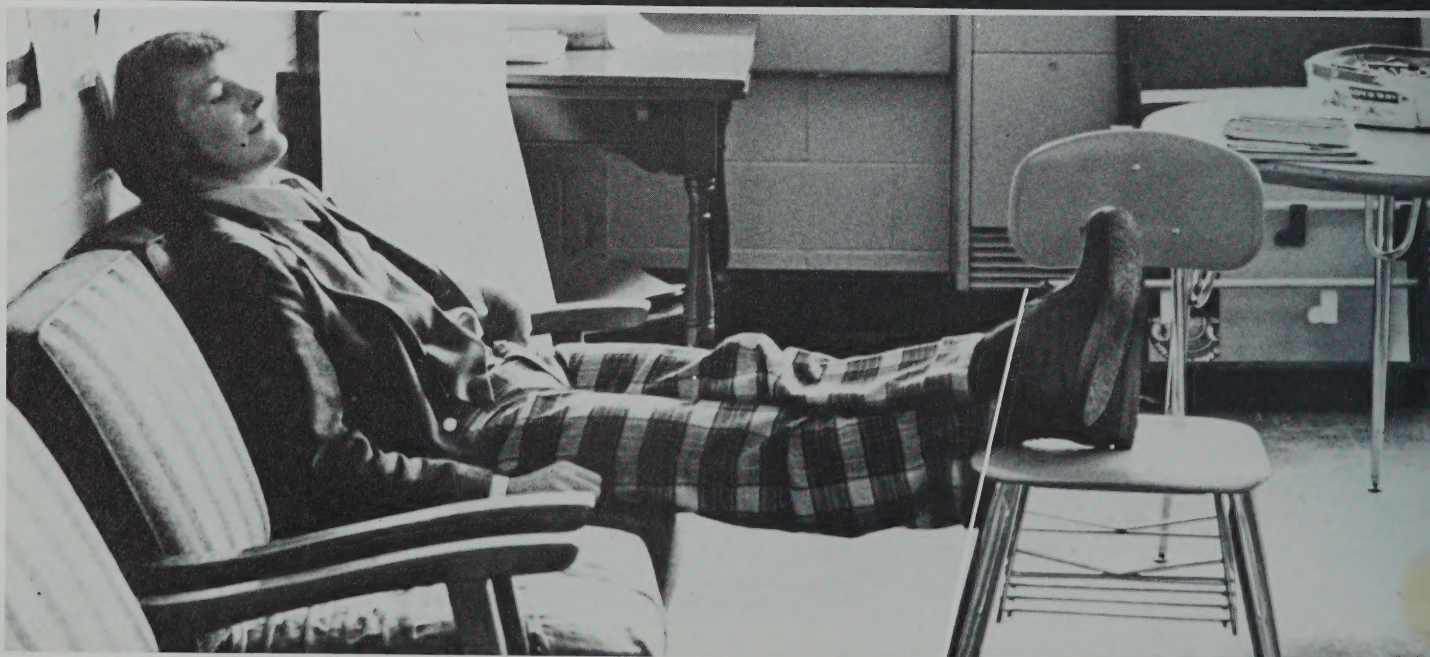

To sleepy students the eight o'clock bell shattered remnants of dreams and propelled stumbling feet to first period. Despite attempts of concentration on binomials or paramecium, images of doughnuts floated before glazed stares. Eyelids drooped while reading "Macbeth" and the moans and groans of an early morning class echoed through the halls.

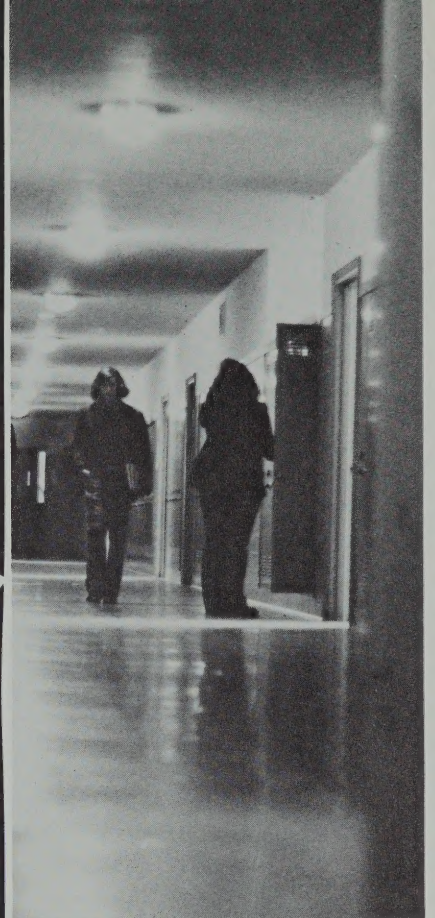

Homeroom time provided students with a mid-morning break. Finally awakened, they listened to the daily list of announcements and responded to their Student Council representatives attempts to muster support for school-sponsored projects. Filled with expectations, everyone slowly came to life and made themselves ready for another day . . . Alpha.

Right: Song books and hosts are preparations set up for each of the morning Masses celebrated at Feehan.

Below: Easy does it! Gerard Corriveau takes a snooze on a do-it-yourself lounge chair in the Student Council room.

'Mimika', rally: afternoon finale

"Chicken salad or a grinder?" Hungry students debated over what food appealed to their growling stomachs during their lunch break from early classes. The cafeteria buzzed as friends related the morning's events between mouthfuls of pizza and "Feehan specials." Work-study participants left for their jobs while the remaining students headed back to class.

Students loudly supported their teams at afternoon rallies, which featured routines of cheerleaders, majorettes, and drill team and skits of the spirit committee. The National Theater Company's presentation of "Mimika" was just one of the many assemblies that provided students with an enjoyable ending to a hectic school day ... Omega.

Right: Explaining offered courses, a college representative entices Kevin Murphy with low-cost, good education.

Left: "You mean you wanted a grinder?" sighs Mrs. Bush while trying to fill Sharon St. Pierre's order.

Missing from picture are Jonathan Phipps and Coaches William Meehan and Ernest Paradis.

Below: Two o'clock finally arrives and grateful students hurry to work, home and various activities.

Astronomers view eclipse

Rrrrring!! 2:00 p.m.! The mad rush began! Students dashed to lockers, buses, and home, but there were many Feehanites who remained to help the spirit committee and to write for the Flash. Budding athletes shaped up in preparation for football games, basketball scrimmages and track meets. Amateur astronomers attended observing sessions to study the movements of the stars. Medical Careers, Future Secretaries and the National Honor Society hosted guest speakers from the Red Cross, Katherine Gibbs Secretarial School and the Attleboro Drug Council. Only after these extracurricular activities had adjourned did Feehan's doors close on a full day. But another was waiting just around the corner. Alpha.

Left: Wednesday afternoon spirit committee meetings provide pleasurable work for Michael Silva, Rosemary Healy, and Christine Cassels as Mr. Santonastaso and Sister Norma inspect their work.

Alpha

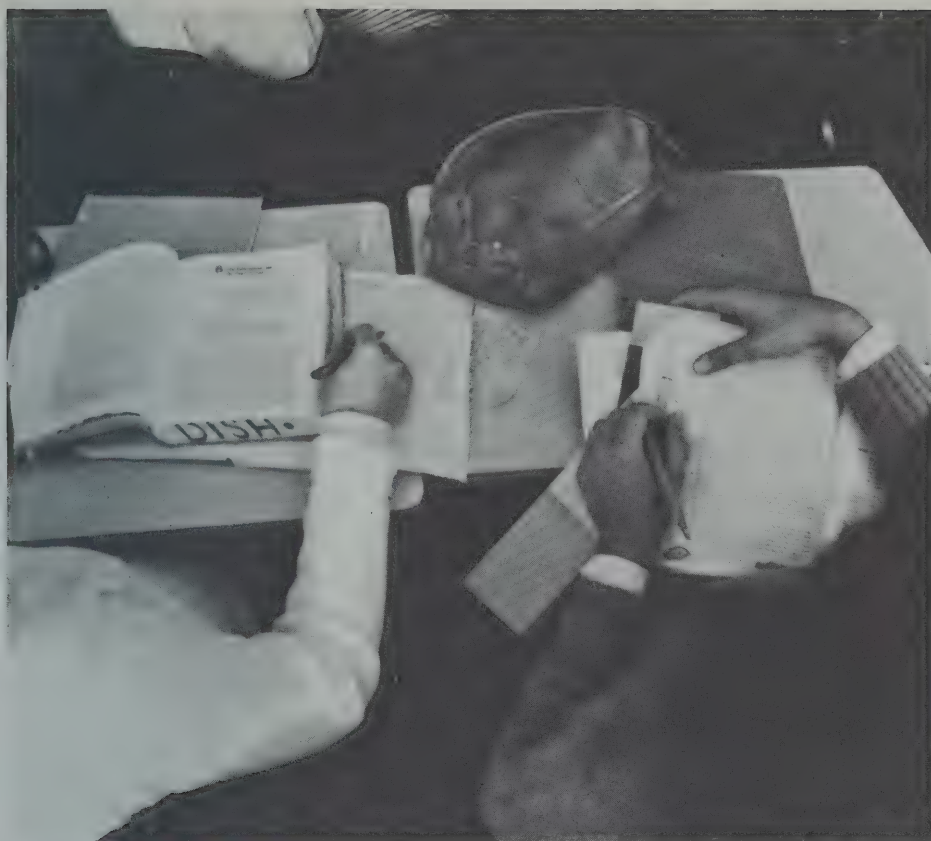

Sighing, we turn to the first page of a brand new chapter and stare blankly at the foreign material. Slowly, we open our notebooks, click our pens and prepare ourselves for another introductory lecture: "Passé Composé."
Swiftly, we scribble down any and every word that makes sense to our strained ears, our confused minds. Skillfully, we work to fit each bit of information into some sort of perspective; we struggle to compute the solubility of NaCl in H₂O.

Omega

Scanning the test, we panic and decide that it is impossible for us to recall all of the rules we have tried so hard to remember. Silently, we fold our arms, close our eyes and imagine how it feels to flunk. Suddenly, something clicks—all those trig functions and laws of motion that never seemed to sink in, flow from our heads and onto the paper. We answer each question, pass in all tests and leave with a feeling of relief.

Utopia study; "Mr. Blue", "Walden Two".

"I am the Alpha and the Omega", says the Lord. Feehan's religion department instilled this philosophy in their courses. Freshman Revelation I students traced the geneology of Christ through the outstanding prophets of the old testament during Advent. In Revelation II, sophomores studied three aspects of Christian life: Bible, Christian worship, and Morality. Junior and Senior electives covered a variety of subjects from Encounter with Christ to Paradise-Utopia. World religion students traveled to Agudas Achim synagogue, exploring the Jewish faith. "The Art of Loving" was the subject of term papers for Mr. Lang's philosophy students, while Mr. Servant's classes studied "Mr. Blue" and "Walden Two". Students in Christian Family Life participated in a mock baptism, illustrating the importance of sacraments in our lives.

Right: Enacting a baptism are "mother" Stephanie Struhar, "Father" John Cuddy, "godparents" Henry McDeed and Martha Sullivan and "celebrant" Fr. Harrington.

Novel, Drama Sci-fi highlight new electives

Science Fiction? In English? You bet. Only one-fourth of the new Senior English college courses, Sci-fi joined the Modern Novel, Mode-Drama and Contemporary Voices in Poetry. Senior honors continued their exploration of great world literature. Juniors, journeyed to Brandeis University to see a production of Shakespeare's "Much Ado About Nothing" as a highlight to their British literature course. Sophomores examined America's literature in direct relation to our country's colorful history in the American Studies program. Feehan's youngest class investigated the elements of drama, poetry, novels, and other literary forms, in addition to rhetoric.

Right: While Mr. Gagnon dissuades Mark Cuddy from invading the world with giant pickles, Robert Ferland and Barry Fonseca attempt to write science fiction stories.

Below: "Do you think we're ready for the Philharmonic?" Musicians, William Pcolka, James Pittman and Philip Eighmy practice up.

Music class, candy, 'n' 'Carmen'

Starting with the basics, members of the music class mastered such instruments as piano, glockenspiel, xylophone and melodia. They learned to work with one another on elements of rhythm, and timing, and even took a look at Bizet's opera "Carmen."

Participants in the class became aware of the difficulties of performing together as a group and each had his turn to conduct. The class also helped to put together a successful assembly for the candy drive which involved acting as well as singing. The enthusiasm of each "musician" in the making of his own music exemplified, in another aspect, that mystery called Feehan spirit.

Languages add honors program

Following the introduction of the honors course to the language department, a fruitful program developed. Students moved ahead at their own pace and enjoyed learning a different means of expression. "Profesores" Sr. Pauline and Mr. Rotondo combined fun and learning with word bees, baseball, and bingo—all Spanish, of course. Discussion and song sparked Sr. Sheila's advanced French classes, while Mr. Costa's elementary groups labored with grammar and pronunciation. Guided by Sr. Elizabeth Doyle, Latin students discovered the meanings of countless words from the original roots and learned discipline as well from that orderly language.

New faces— fresh start

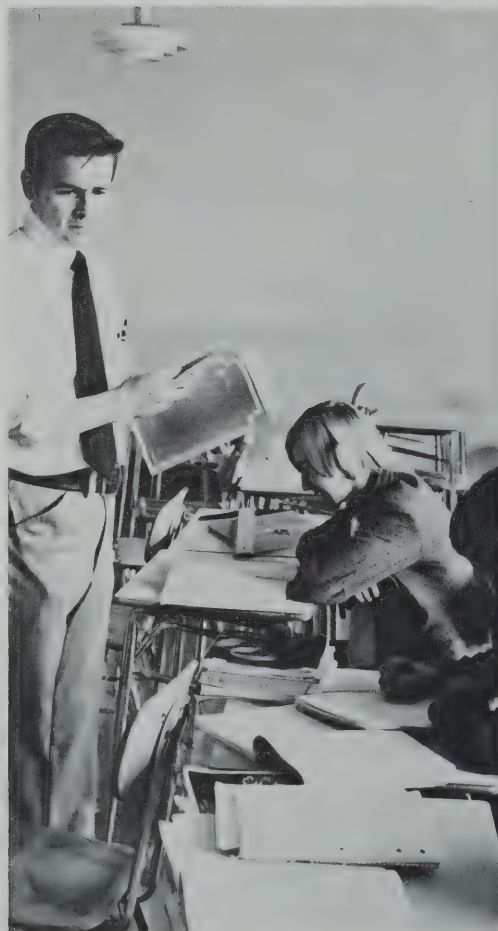

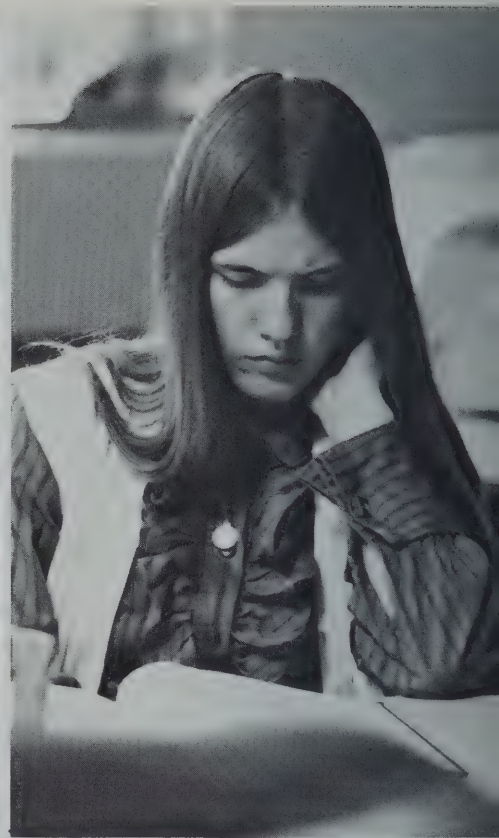

From Algebra I to Calculus students became more enlightened in the field of mathematics. With several major changes in the department, new teachers brought with them new ideas and a clean start for various students. Sister Patricia Harrington took over the position of department head, while Mr. Lang revived Introductory Analysis for the junior honors class after it had been dropped from the curriculum for a year. Mr. Costa joined the math program for one period a day as he took the responsibility of an Algebra II class. Another new faculty member, Mr. Bunn left his research at MIT to teach Analytic Geometry here at Feehan. Different personalities added a spark of insight to math classes.

Below right: Hoping to find the answer, Shawn Ryan seeks a helping hand in math computation from Mr. Costa.

"I can't see a thing!" exclaims William Dullude, Robert Robillard, and Robert Ashe while peeping through their kaleidoscopes.

Solar eclipses and plants growing from the sinks added new twists to Feehan's science classes. Freshmen opened with BSCS, studying flowers, Darwin's theories, and bacteria. Sophomores and juniors applied principles of the ideal gas law and Kelvin's absolute zero. Juniors and seniors explored new fields of science in Advanced Chemistry and Physics. Using telescopes and polaroid lenses, astronomy students observed December's solar eclipse and meteorite shower. Advanced Biology students dissected fetal pigs and attempted to capture protozoa under the microscope, while Physiology students applied knowledge of the body to prepare them for future medical careers.

Below right: Kaleidoscope motion opens a new interest to future astronomers, Colleen Durocher, Leslie Clark, and Ted Weygand.

Below: Experimenting for acceleration due to gravity, Mr. Santonastaso keeps a watchful eye on Paul Cummins.

Microscopes and telescopes: new insights

Left: "I'm dying?" Kevin Murphy, Sr. Rose Angela, Pam Wishnevsky and Sue Corbeil convince Betty Ann Doyle that she is.

Below: Lab reports are a new experience as Penny Perreault attempts to combine accuracy and theory to reach a conclusion.

Below: Hoping it won't explode, Annette Courchesne, Jane Kelly, and Josette Poirier try their hand at experimenting in the Chem Lab.

Field trips, elections spark social awareness

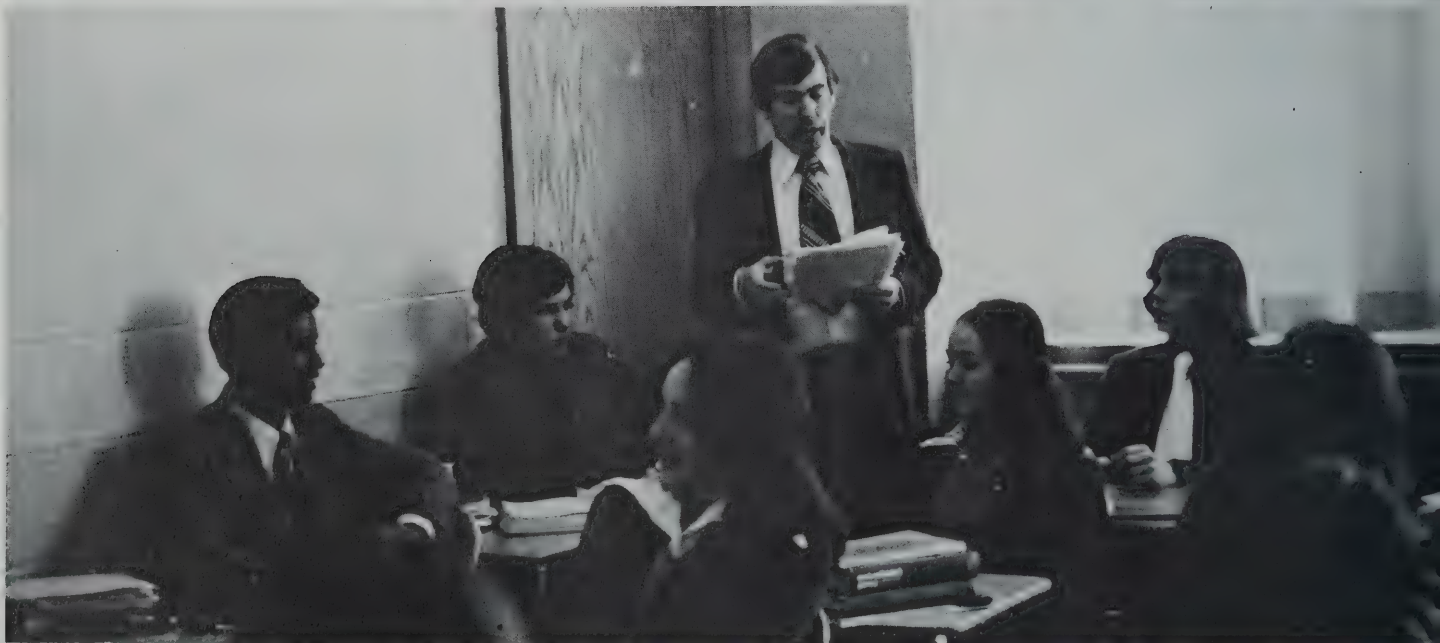

Explaining facts with audiovisual materials and encouraging student involvement, this year's history department made learning more enjoyable. Classes looked into issues such as inflation, poverty, welfare and many other current happenings. Students who were enrolled in one of the three law classes traveled to Boston's John Hancock Hall to attend a seminar on "Juvenile Justice."

Back at Feehan, Mr. Loew's Ism's class studied the principles of a variety of political theories while Mr. Cunniff's American Government class formed party platforms and held mock elections in which a president and vice president were chosen.

All freshmen took a world history course and sophomores participated in the American Studies program for a second year. Keeping up with past and present events, students prepared for their future lives as involved citizens.

"What does Watergate have to do with it? Isn't it a hotel?" queried Linda Boucher as Patricia Barrows, Steven Pedro, Mary Ann McAuliffe, Perry Mayer, Karen Alix, Bradley Locke, Kevin O'Donald, Alice DesVergnes respond immediately.

Below: Engrossed in Mr. Cunniff's history lecture are Maureen Dunn, Maurice Gueriere, Irma Velez, and Thomas Morin.

Silhouetted in the afternoon sun, Sister Veronica's room, almost an art work in itself, reveals tranquility after a creative day.

Below: "Please don't move your arm!" request Donna Feeteau and Kerrin Lee as they sketch from a live model.

Creativity, skill, grow in Art

Future Picassos and Rembrandts recorded their impressions of life on canvas in Feehan's art classes this year. They studied many aspects of the art world such as geometric proportions, color, and design. Students spent many long, hard hours laboring over every small detail until they attained perfection in their creations. Art II classes worked with clay and paper mache to create 3-dimensional artwork. Sister Veronica's room was cluttered with statues, sketches, and mobiles, the handiwork of many Feehanites down through the years.

Precision and creativity combined in Mechanical Drawing classes as students designed future buildings. T-squares, folders and No. 2 pencils made daily trips to the third floor to begin work on home and industrial plans.

Sawdust and flour—creativity reigns.

Spatulas, beaters, and cookbooks formed a kaleidoscope of fun in Home Ec. Christmas trees decorated with school-made cookies, and food prepared for visiting teachers kept students in Boy's Chef and Foods on their toes. Home Management created dream houses from magazines, and learned budgeting and family planning. Mrs. Cynthia Schensnol added knowledge with up-to-date information about new techniques.

Shop classes for both boys and girls helped students to cut Christmas costs by making their own presents. Aided by Mr. Fortin, tables, bars, and chests were precisely manufactured. Minor accidents were overshadowed by smiling faces covered with sawdust as they proudly climbed the stairs, clutching their finished products.

Right: Clean-up can be fun if you do it together, as Gayle Mason and Judith O'Neal find in cooking class.

Order of day: new business

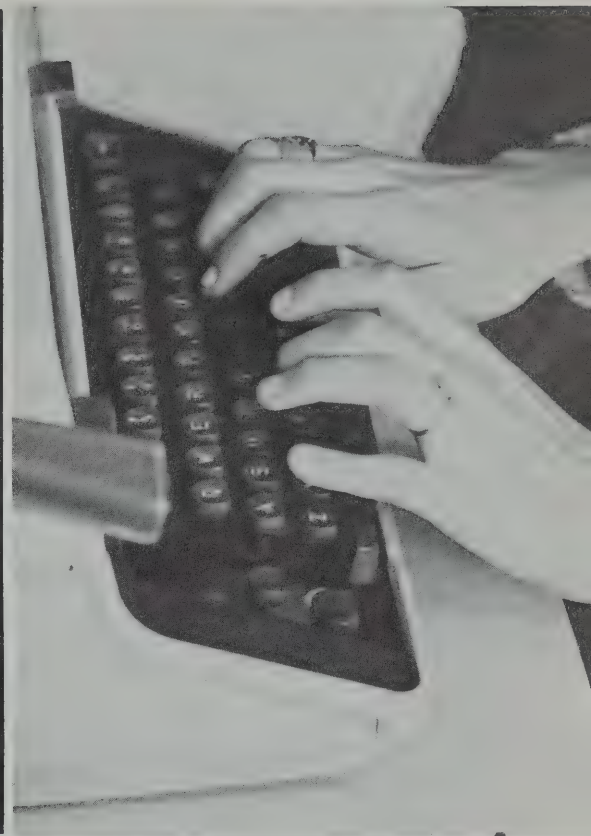

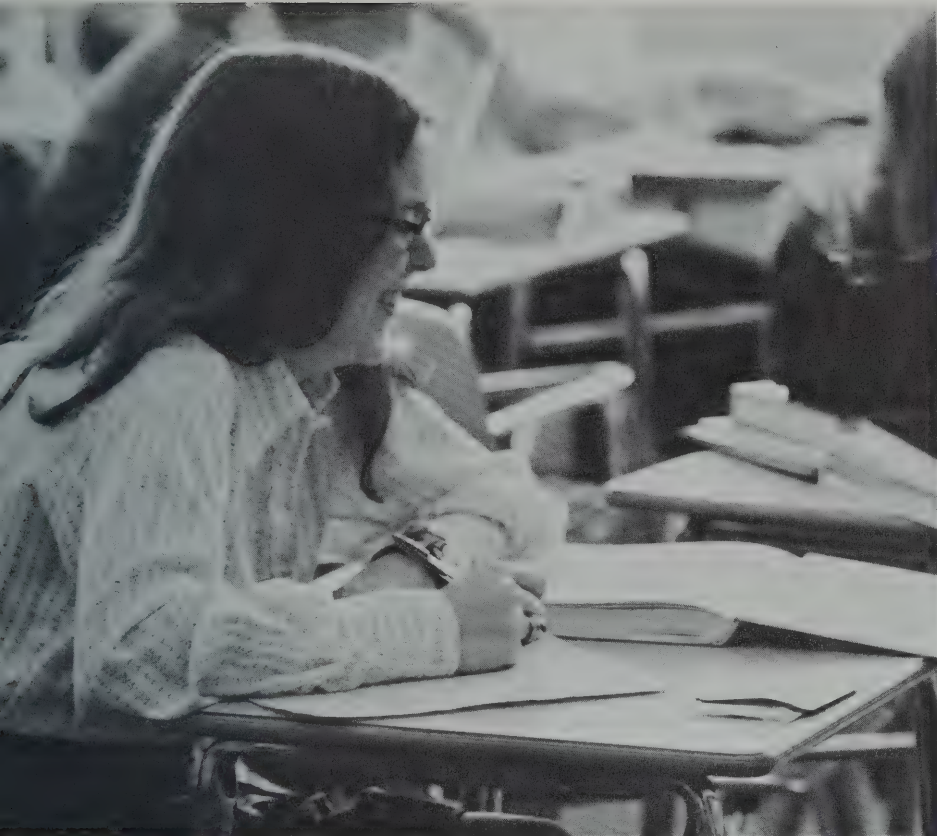

"Getting down to business," new department head, Sister Rosaire, brought different ideas to students taking such courses as typing, shorthand, and accounting. Business faculty kept in touch with current office techniques and offered exceptional amounts of information to their classes. The department developed the semester Personal Typing course into a full year non-business course. This allowed all students to gain typing experience for college needs.

The Future Secretaries Association listened to guest speakers in order to become aware of recent trends.

Right: Learning the correct way of using a copy machine, Cheryl Glynn and Cheryl Viens print their own Christmas cards.

Below: Intent on their work, Alice DesVergnes, Karen Gibbons, and Mary Mournighan sharpen their skills on other office machines.

Above right: "Let your fingers do the walking, and keep your eyes on the copy." Sister Rosaire proclaims daily to her class.

Library fosters research, peace, quiet thinking

One room that remained silent for studying throughout the year was the library. This place was an "oasis" for those who could not find peace in any other part of the school. During an average study period, students scattered themselves among the many tables to translate languages, calculate math problems, or finish last-minute homework assignments.

New rules made better efficiency possible for both students and library workers. Student aides stamped library cards and helped freshman to get acquainted with books. As the Dec. 13 deadline approached, the library bustled with seniors preparing term papers.

Tapes and earphones make life easier as John Billington and Francis DeStefano discover with help from Sr. Virginia and Sr. Vincent.

Below: Always ready with a helping hand, Sister Vincent Cox and Sister Alice Fortin keep the library in order.

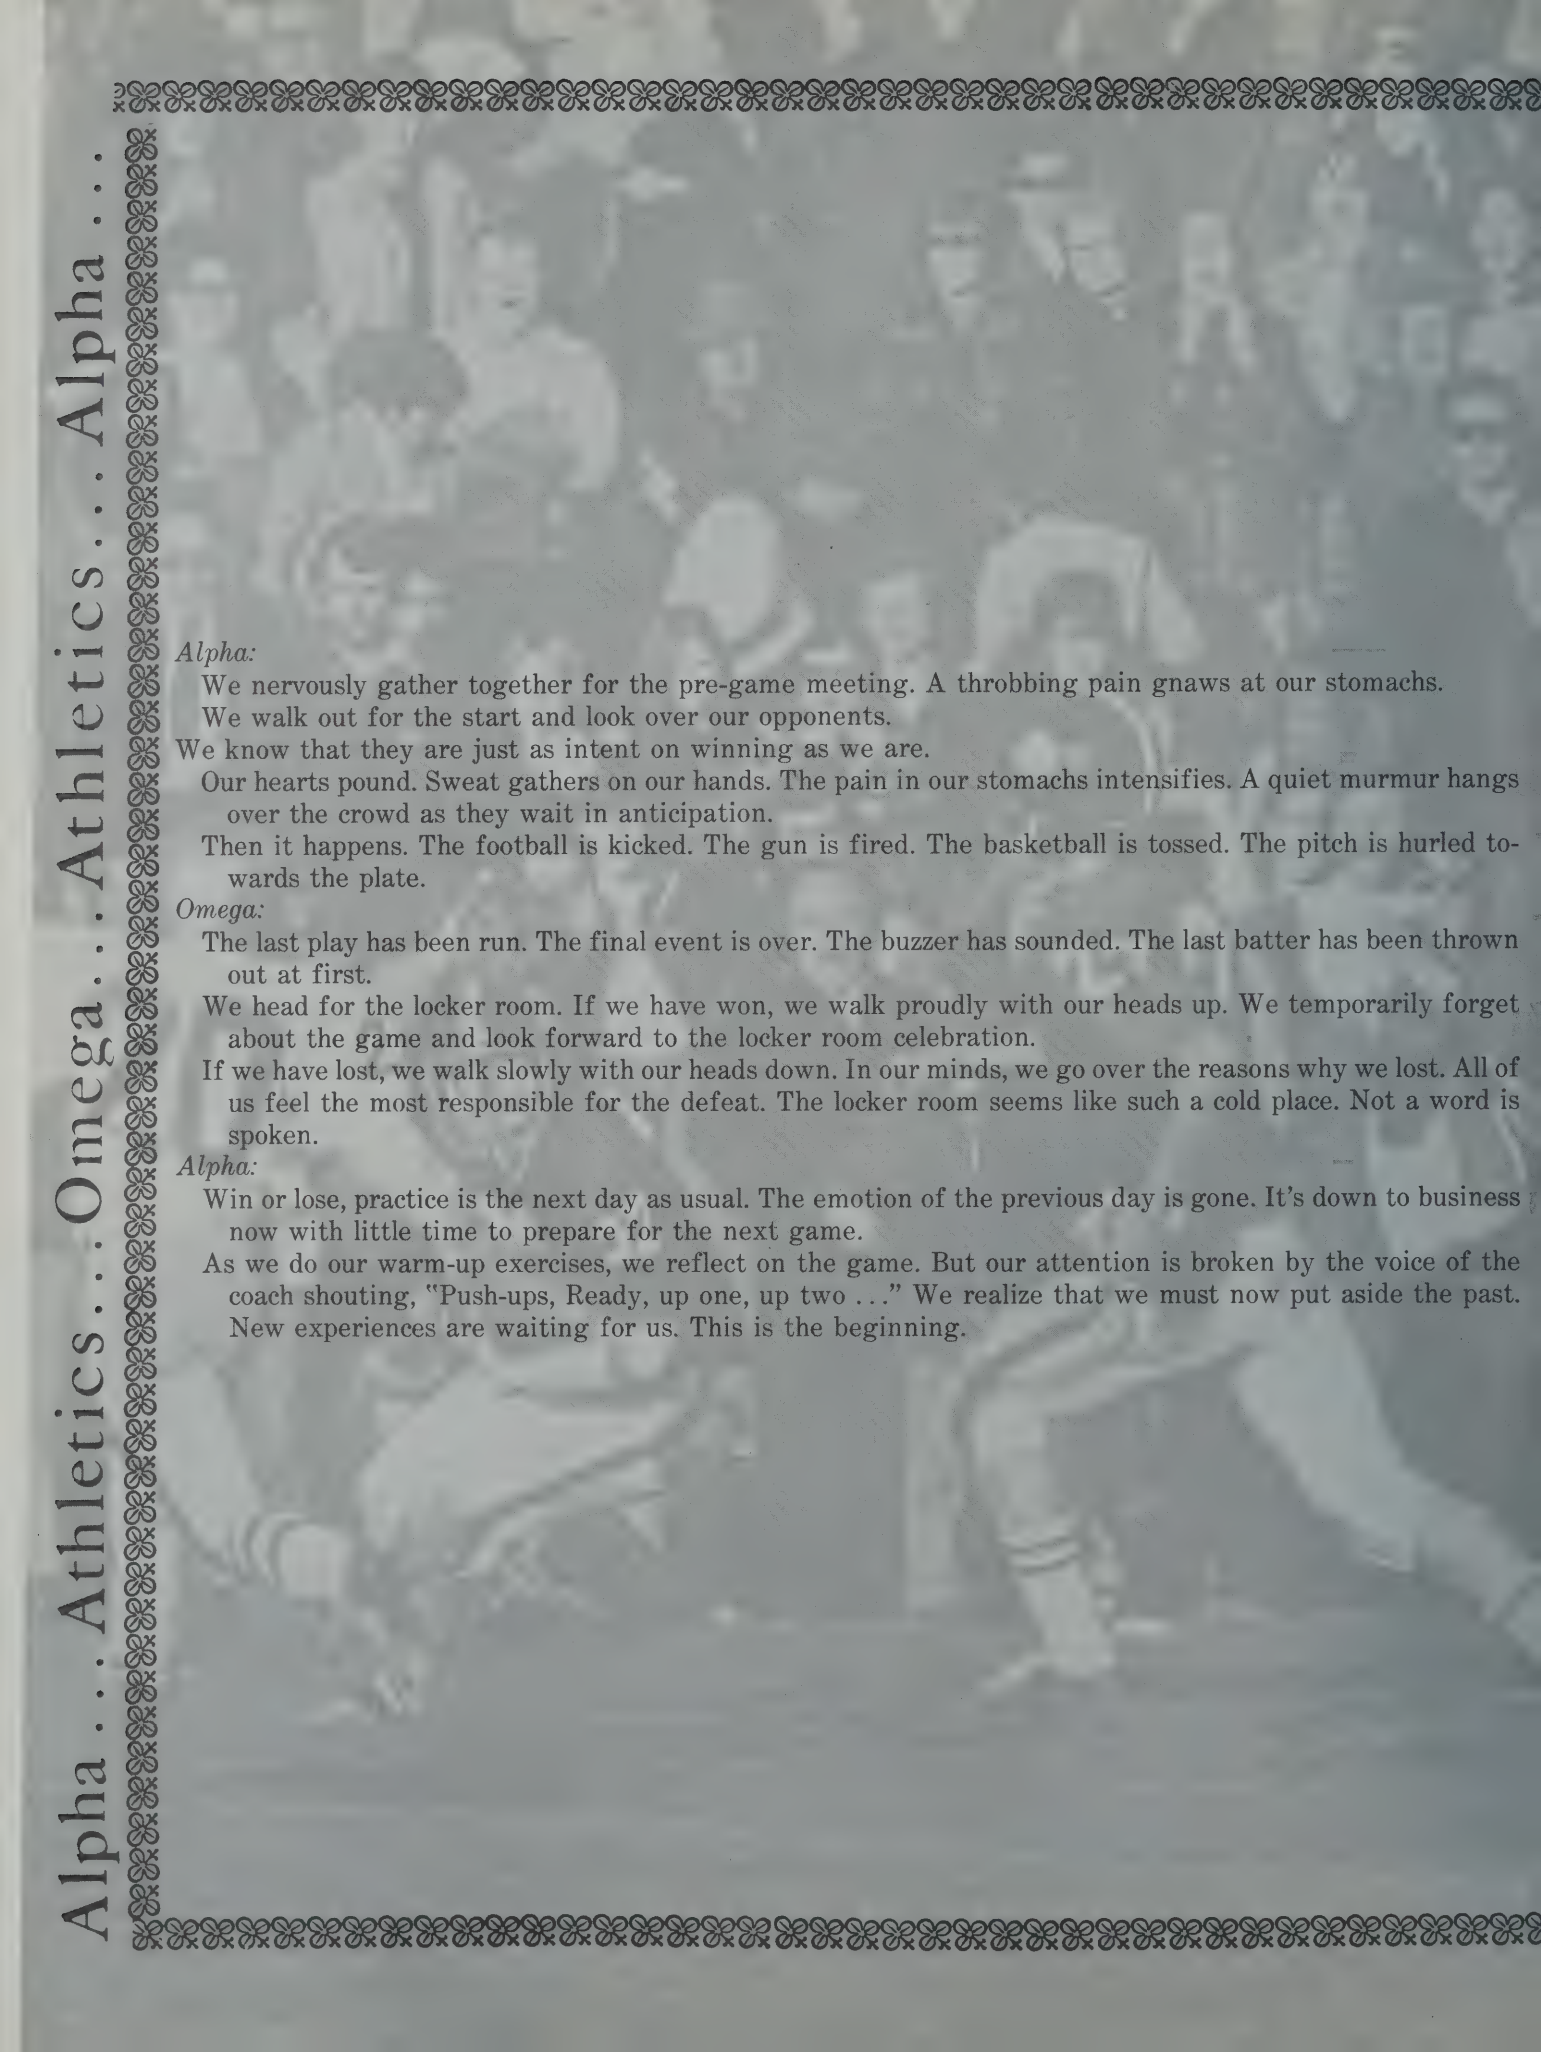

Upper left: Finding that the library helps with term paper, Joanne DeFiore scans an interesting passage.

Below: Silence and solitude make a good combination for studying as Robert Welch ponders "The Canterbury Tales."

Above right: Keeping Feehan's tuition records in perfect order, Mrs. Dean continues to brighten up the day with a friendly face.

Alpha . . . Athletics . . . Omega . . . Athletics . . . Alpha . . .

Alpha:

We nervously gather together for the pre-game meeting. A throbbing pain gnaws at our stomachs. We walk out for the start and look over our opponents.

We know that they are just as intent on winning as we are.

Our hearts pound. Sweat gathers on our hands. The pain in our stomachs intensifies. A quiet murmur hangs over the crowd as they wait in anticipation.

Then it happens. The football is kicked. The gun is fired. The basketball is tossed. The pitch is hurled towards the plate.

Omega:

The last play has been run. The final event is over. The buzzer has sounded. The last batter has been thrown out at first.

We head for the locker room. If we have won, we walk proudly with our heads up. We temporarily forget about the game and look forward to the locker room celebration.

If we have lost, we walk slowly with our heads down. In our minds, we go over the reasons why we lost. All of us feel the most responsible for the defeat. The locker room seems like such a cold place. Not a word is spoken.

Alpha:

Win or lose, practice is the next day as usual. The emotion of the previous day is gone. It's down to business now with little time to prepare for the next game.

As we do our warm-up exercises, we reflect on the game. But our attention is broken by the voice of the coach shouting, "Push-ups, Ready, up one, up two . . ." We realize that we must now put aside the past. New experiences are waiting for us. This is the beginning.

Quietly preparing himself for the upcoming meet, Michael McKay thinks over strategy for the two mile race.

Getting ready for the Attleboro game, an eager Robert Cronin can't wait to go out and do his thing.

Easily clearing the bar, high jumper Eileen Ashe clenches her fist and grits her teeth as she prepares to hit the foam.

Showing the opposition their heels, 880 runners Judith Mahoney and Colleen Brennan battle each other for the lead.

Storms don't dampen team spirit

More at home in rain than in sunshine, this year's girls' track team trucked along under stormy skies. But rainy skies didn't dampen the girls' spirits. They ran through thunder, lightening and puddles and captured a third place in their division in only their first year of league competition.

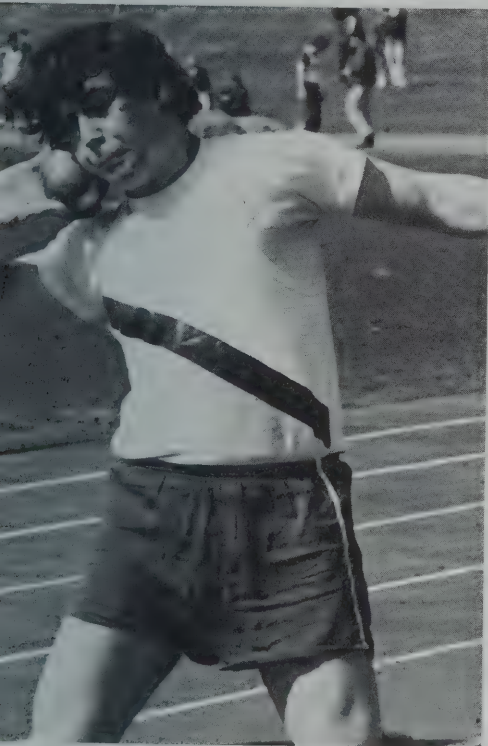

Feehan's girls, a young team, composed of many sophomores and freshmen saw many records fall this year. Joanna Needham broke the school record and just missed tying the state record for the discus with a throw of 112 feet. Co-captain Susan Pollis, unbeaten in the high jump set a new school record of 5'1". Next year sees the return of many lettermen and hopes of another "sunny" season.

Breaking away from the rest of the field, milers Perry Mayer and Steven Agostini insure a 1-2 finish for Feehan.

Under the watchful eyes of teammates Mark Cuddy and Stephen Battista, long-legged John Lambert takes off for another first place.

Winding up for the big throw against Stang, shot putter Paul Stringham, pauses a moment to psyche himself up.

Records fall as track men star

Despite harsh, biting winds and freezing cold rains, track practice got off as usual on the second Monday of March. With very little time to prepare for the first meet, everyone put in a lot of extra effort to get in shape. The hard work paid off as Feehan whipped Connolly.

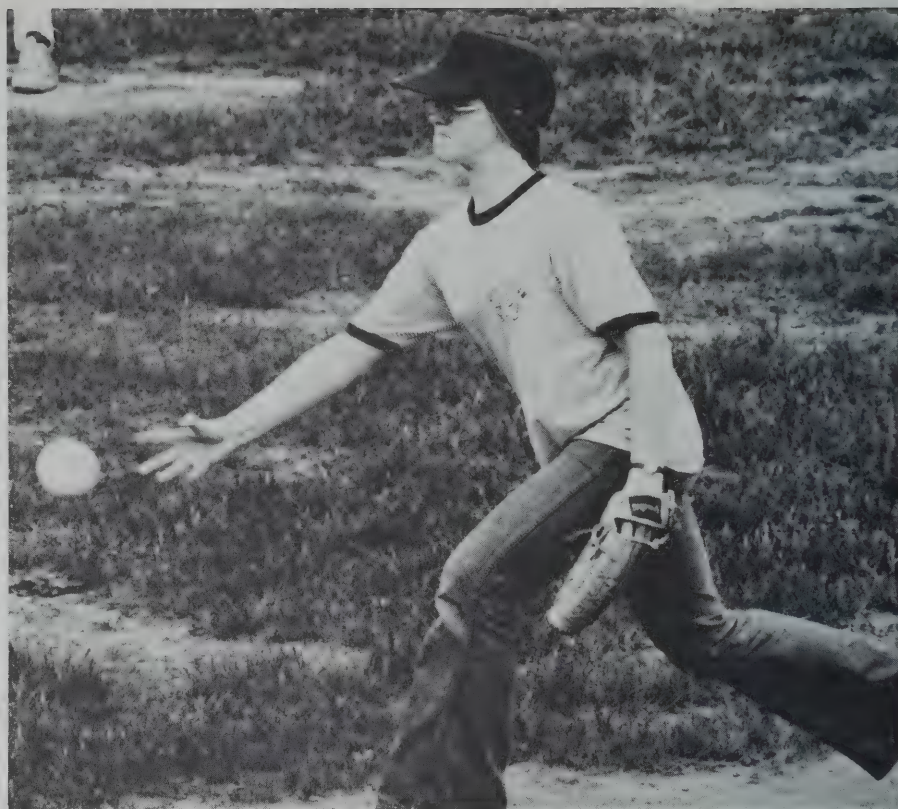

Highlighting the season were four new school records. In the Dighton-Rehoboth meet, Robert Robillard flung the javelin 162'10". Later, against Coyle, he broke the triple jump record leaping 40'8½" and toppled that mark by two inches in the divisional meet. Also in the Coyle meet, Steven McNally soared over the pole vault at 10'6". Captain Paul Mayer, uncontested in the discus all year long, shattered the record, hurling the disc 149'10½". In addition to these school records, many personal bests were achieved.

John Wishniewski, Keith Brais, Paul Stringham, Eugene Bolinger, Coach John Perkoski

Scores soar in softball

Score is the name of the game, and that is just what the 1974 softball team did. In a short eight game schedule, the girls crossed home plate an incredible 134 times as compared to 83 by the opposition. Both times against Norton, they displayed an amazing offensive punch which produced football-like scores.

Getting off to a fine start by winning two out of three, the team went into the Dighton-Rehoboth game with high hopes and an optimistic attitude. The girls lost a heartbreaker, 3-2, in extra innings, despite some fine pitching. Bouncing back against Norton, they began a three game winning streak and finished the season with a commendable 5 wins, 3 losses record.

Lining a shot down the left field foul line, slugger, Patricia Carlson, prepares to round the bases as Cynthia McAlice looks on.

1974-stepping stone to future success

Though a 4 and 15 season cannot be called successful by any stretch of the imagination, it does represent a 300 percent improvement over the previous season. It looks as if the baseball team is on the way up once more. 1974 was the first stepping stone for future supremacy.

Early in the season, the Shamrocks accomplished something which hadn't been seen for a while, back-to-back wins. The second of these, a 2 to 1 decision over Bishop Connolly, witnessed some clutch pitching by Alvin Wilson and the game-winning double by David Benoit. Going for three in a row, a feat not accomplished by a Feehan team in four years, the Shamrocks gave it a valiant try, but lost. They hung in tough until their late innings when Dighton-Rehoboth scored eight times and sewed up the victory.

Keeping his eye on the ball, Michael Kirby calls for and chases down a high pop-up in the infield.

"Good luck to anyone who tries to connect with his fastball," muses William Cauley as hurler, Thomas Grimes, whips in a smokeball.

Driving the ball with the style and authority of Jack Nicklaus, Steven Hawkins dreams of someday winning the Masters.

Carefully surveying the ground before stepping up to the putt, Neal Boyer has his sights set at a birdie.

Aiming for the flag, Brian Gamache hits a short chip shot out of the rough and onto the green.

Golf team tees off to opposition

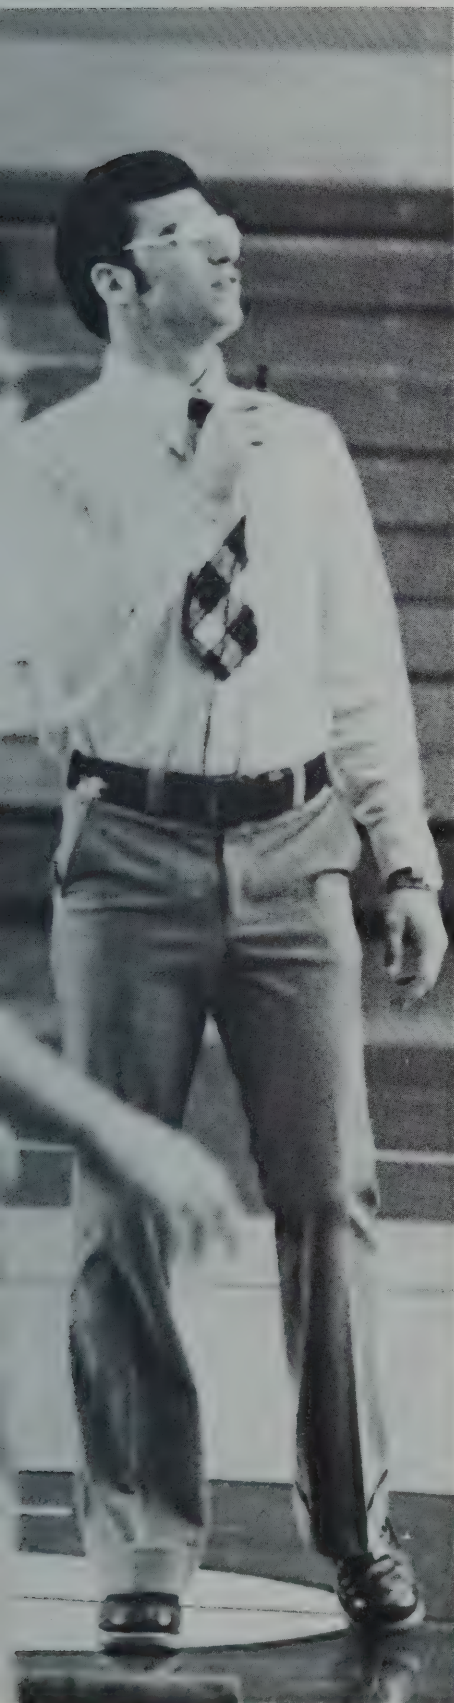

After eight straight winning seasons, the golf team suffered its first losing season. The team consisted of several young, inexperienced members, closing the year with a 4 and 10 record.

The 1975 team should have a better record with the return of experienced juniors Brian Gamache, John Tetreault, and Russell Quaglia, along with promising sophomores, Neal Boyer and Arthur Boulet.

Shape up for team success

From a downcourt pass for an easy layup in basketball to the setting up of an overhead spike in volleyball, the physical education program placed much emphasis on the idea of teamwork, but also the importance of a sound and healthy mind and body. Sounds of basketballs swishing through nets, sneakers squeaking on the floor, and cries of "over here" echoed throughout the gym. Everyone had a lot of fun while staying in shape.

Physical education teacher, Mr. Paul Klenk, gets ready to blow the whistle ending another exciting gym class.

Bryan Wessman leaves his feet in an attempt to counterattack an opponent's block as Glenn Caldwell moves in to help.

Instructor, Joanna Needham, teaches Kung-Fu to Karen McKeon, Margaret LaCasse, Christine Kelley, Mary Ellen Rockett and Roberta McAlice.

Cheering squad, no. 1 in spirit

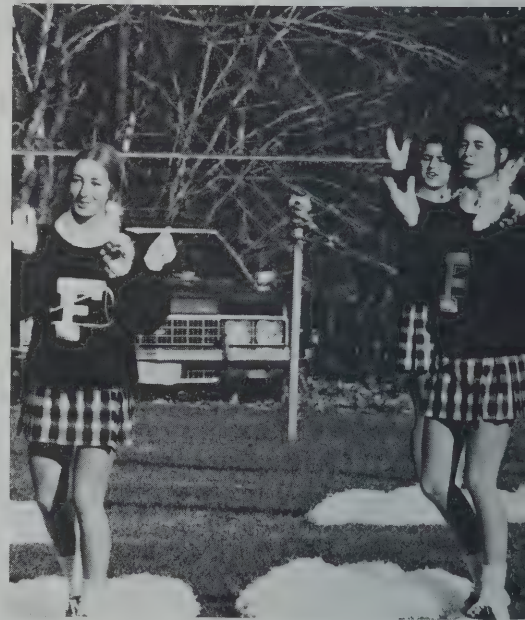

Always present at football games, rallies, and basketball games, the cheerleading squad displayed enthusiasm all year long. Hours of hard work went into making each drill perfectly coordinated. At the St. Mary's Cheerleaders' competition, they took home a well-deserved second place.

Adding much to the excitement of the football season was the pep squad. With their green and white shakers, they formed a spirited, colorful group at the football games. For Homecoming, they dressed up in costumes and played an important part in the halftime show.

Crunch! Junior Henry McDeed plows headlong into an unfortunate Coyle runner as Frank Luongo moves in to add the finishing touches.

Having plenty of time to set up, thanks to a block by Terrence Buckley, Robert Lee fires a long one.

Season Comeback revives spirit

With a 1-7 record behind them, the football team entered the season with something to prove. They had to prove to the school and to themselves that Feehan football pride and tradition was still alive. They had to prove that they could go out onto the field and come off winners.

After the opening game loss to North Attleboro, many Feehanites said that this season would be a repetition of the last. But the team, refusing to give up, responded with a three game victory streak, winning all by shut-outs. In the Bourne game, however, the loss of starting quarterback Brian Walsh overshadowed a fine team effort.

Following a heartbreaking last-minute loss to Case, the Shamrocks invaded the Attleboro field with memories of three straight defeats on their minds. In a game which was highlighted by fine defense and powerhouse running by Henry McDeed, they shut-out their cross-town rivals, 12-0. Two more wins followed, giving them a respectable 6-4 record.

Scrambling with the agility and effectiveness of Fran Tarkenton, quarterback Robert Lee evades pursuit of a hard charging lineman.

Spotting an open receiver, Terrence Buckley winds up to throw as Michael Achin, Robert Lee, and Robert Ferland turn back attackers.

Top right: Bursting through the enemy line, Henry McDeed shows the power which made him a long-gain running threat for the Shamrocks.

Straining with all her might, co-captain Christine Kelley displays the extra effort which characterized another winning season for the girls.

Anxiously following an important play are Mary Paquin, coaches Mr. Servant and Sister Rose Angela, Julie Zachman and Priscilla Ferland.

Sharp shooters sink opponents

One word not in our girls' basketball team's vocabulary is defeat. The sharp shooters led by co-captains Mary Paquin and Christine Kelley compiled a fine record with a string of 14 victories, being beaten only by the girls' alumni team. Headed by a new coach, Mr. Christopher Servant, the varsity traveled to the South-eastern Massachusetts Girls' Invitational Tournament. The junior varsity girls, captained by Jane Kelley and Barbara Kelley and coached by Sister Rose Angela got off to a slow start but came back strong to end up with a winning season. Team spirit was a big factor not shown in the win-loss column, but it showed on the court.

Members of the Girls' Varsity basketball team are, sitting: Christine Kelley, Mary Paquin. Kneeling: Christine Cassels, Eileen Stelmack, Denise Neveux, Jane Kelley, Mary Ann McAuliffe. Standing: Colleen Durocher, Joanna Needham, Coach Mr. Christopher Servant, Melody Broadley, and Patricia Carlson.

Confined by close guarding, Patricia Carlson eyes her opponent as Denise Neveux hurries to the rescue.

Loyal fans of the girls' basketball teams, freshmen cheerleaders, Theresa Wassil, Patricia Flaherty, Nancy Sedlak, Maureen Clancy, and Karen Flammia provide support.

Defense + rebounding winning

Jumping up for control of the opening tip-off, the centers try to get the ball to their teammates.

Key to the success of the 1975 basketball team was an improved defense and rebounding. After last season which saw Feehan last in defense, the main objective of Coach Gerald Cuniff was to improve defensively and on the boards.

Led by captains Jacob Belt and Michael Achin, the Shamrocks scrapped and ball-hawked their way to a good season with a vastly improved defense and a well-balanced scoring attack. The team will lose five valuable graduating players in Jacob Belt, Michael Achin, Gary O'Leary, Robert Cronin, and John Lambert, but the chances of future success are bright with many promising juniors and sophomores.

Angry over a called foul, Coaches Gerald Cuniff and Edward Gagnon express their opinions.

Looking for a teammate open under the basket, Jacob Belt dribbles carefully towards the middle of the court.

Coolly looking over his opponent, guard Robert Cronin prepares to drive towards the basket for a lay-up.

Lining up before a foul shot, Gary O'Leary hopes he can get a rebound and two points for the Shamrocks.

ham, Gary O'Leary, Michael Kirby, Neal Boyer, Robert Cronin, Anthony Ciarocco, Coach Gerald Cuniff, manager Roger Surprenant.

Piercing the Attleboro defense, hard-charging Brendan Doherty lays up an easy shot for another two points.

Car washes, assemblies, and spirit days made the Student Council an important part of Feehan life. Council members donned feathers and chaps, pinned socks to their clothing and constructed activity calendars to notify students of coming events. Aided by "helpful" teachers, they raised money to assist the school financially with a successful carwash. Enthusiastic workers stamped hands and collected money to the music of "Brown Sugar". Members also organized and were guides and lecturers in the Freshman Seminar.

Workshops teach leadership techniques

Many special events highlighted the Student Council calendar. In student-aimed Homecoming week, students enjoyed Scalp'em day, trivia quiz, lick'em day. On busy homecoming day, Christine Bergh was crowned homecoming queen as the fighting Feehanites beat Coyle-Cassidy 8-6. Student Council members visited from other schools for a day and vice-versa.

Experiencing these exchanges gave students an idea of what life was like in neighboring schools. During the Christmas assembly, the four classes put on a variety of skits. A pint-size Santa Claus, a boys choir, request for two front teeth for Christmas, a "Dirk-in-the-box" and other come-alive toys provided delightful entertainment. Feehanites viewed oldies but goodies on free flick night. Throughout the year, students enriched school life with the help of Student Council activities.

Cooperation— accomplishment

Awakening on Sunday in the yearbook spirit, members of the staff shuffled to school to work on the book. Amid shouts of "How many characters in capital W?" and "What's this freshman's name?" the copy staff compromised with the layout staff, and longingly awaited the coming of lunch while attempting to convey new ideas. When orders from Burger Chef arrived, everyone happily munched on hamburgers, french fries and salad. Suddenly, a light began to shine and everything melted into place. In the afternoon, the atmosphere quieted down, thoughts united, and themes miraculously fit together. Alpha, omega, alpha.

Spring musical: sophistication in six weeks

Paris in the spring! Sidewalk cafes brought their elegance to Feehan during the month of April. Graceful gowns and tailored tuxedos swept the stage as Mrs. Amadio, Sr. Evangela and Mr. Haskins directed a cast of thirty in the performance of the spring musical "Gigi". It is the tale of a rich, youthful man falling in love with a little girl who suddenly becomes a beautiful young woman.

All the scenery and costumes were built and designed by the stage crew and the performers themselves during regular practice hours. Play rehearsals were delayed for a considerable amount of time, but this only added incentive to the actors and actresses to work harder and longer on their parts. Night after night they were instructed in expressive singing and the mannerisms of a Parisian personality. Gradually, each member of the cast mastered his script and actually became the character which he was portraying. Everything melded into a finished production and "Gigi" was performed for three receptive audiences. The drama department took pride in the show that took only six weeks to put together.

Bobby socks and platforms

Lights flashing, the pulse of drums, a thin cloud of smoke rising are some of the basic ingredients of Feehan dances. With the help of industrious Dance Committee members, many new and worthwhile groups performed for appreciative students. "Ing", "Eternity", and "Georgie Porgie Bozo Band" were a few of the many groups hired to play by Student Council. Homecoming, the Sadie Hawkins, Christmas dances, as well as the Junior-Senior Prom gave students a chance to socialize and exhibit their skills at the "bump" and other steps. Adding to efficiency and fun, a new coat check system was introduced, to help students find their own belongings.

Honors came thick and fast in December when six seniors received National Merit Awards for outstanding scores in PSAT examinations. William Pcolka was cited as semi-finalist in the nationwide competition which made him eligible for scholarships and higher honors.

Deaf speak on listening

Keeping students informed occupied much of Medical Careers time. An assembly for the deaf, given by Mrs. Vase and Mrs. Palmer, explained the tragedies of deaf children and how few facilities Massachusetts has for dealing with these children. Students preparing for future careers in medicine listened to speakers like Ms. Emma Wellman and Sister Thomas Moore talk on the subjects of blood and geriatrics. Drama, drills, and music proclaim Christmas spirit

This year's Christmas Concert drew appreciative people to enjoy a night of festive holiday entertainment. Caroling in the traditional manner, the members of the newly organized folk group sang to the accompaniment of strumming guitars and piano. Reciting literature by poets such as Robert Frost and Rod McKuen, the drama club added a new dimension to the annual show. Dana Fredette performed three pieces on the vibraphone including a rendition of "Silent Night." The band played such holiday songs as "Sleigh Ride" and "Oh Holy Night." The drill team and colorguard performed on stage using their flags and batons.

The sounds of Christmas bells and the tree shimmering in the light brought the joy of the season to all, as voices and instruments united in the proclamation of Christ's birth.

Music, flags highlight halftime

Marching into the season with flying colors, the band and colorguard added pleasurable notes to half-time. The drill master, Dennis Fagnant devised a drill consisting of a flag presentation which the performers built upon for Homecoming. Working every Saturday morning from 8:00 to 12:00, they used as songs "Baby Elephant Walk", and "The Man on the Flying Trapeze" to signify a three-ring circus. For Thanksgiving, the half-timers welcomed Santa Claus as they played "Jingle Bells". For the senior members, these new ideas brought the beginning of the end, but they began a tradition of respect and pride for being part of the band.

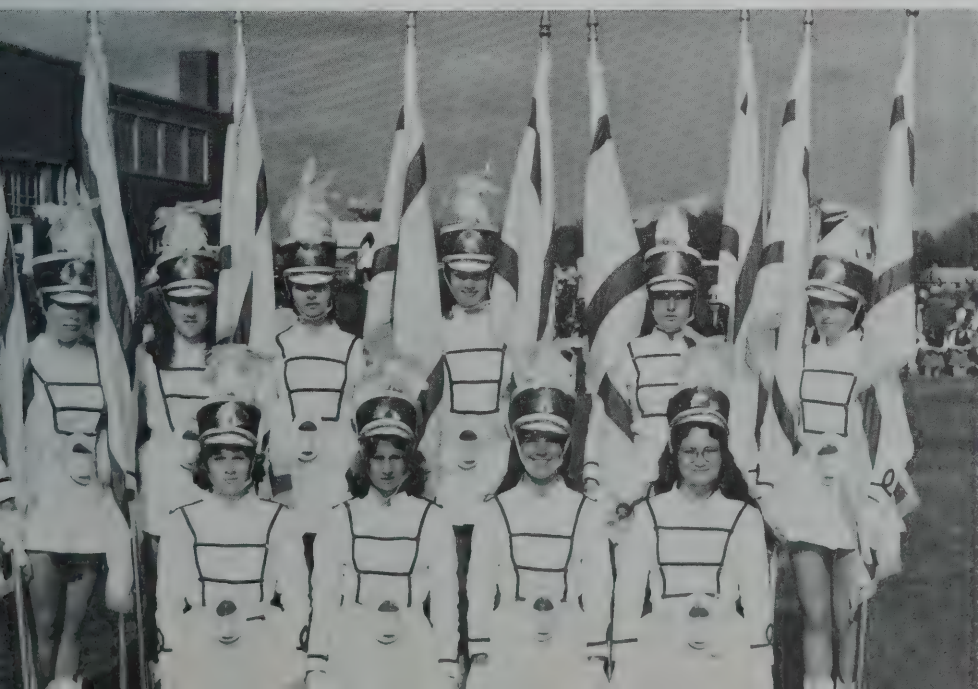

Marching to the homecoming victory are Pierette LaPlante, Carol Dalton, Dana Fredette, Clayton Lennartz, Mary Motyl, David Stebbin, and Sharon Hardrow.

Twirlers perfect halftime circus

"I can't twirl, my hands are too cold!" mumbled drill team and majorettes during cold practices on Saturday mornings. Twirlers also spent long hours after school perfecting their routines. Both units performed at rallies to such songs as "Alley Cat" and "Rock Around the Clock."

Practicing did not stop after football season. Drill team prepared for the Christmas concert and majorettes polished their competition drill to the tune of "Aquarius/Let the Sunshine In."

What don't they do?

"Bus 13 has just arrived; please admit the students to class without a pass." Meanwhile, Sister Anastasia doled out late slips to those students who had prepared a variety of other excuses to explain their tardiness.

As each day progressed, Miss Condon, Mrs. McAlice, and Mrs. Deam kept the business end of Feehan running smoothly, while Sister Carmelita and Sister Regina struggled with the age-old problem of getting students accepted into college. Sister Faith and Mr O'Boy pulled together to unite members of the student body and the faculty in academic, athletic and spiritual events.

Dear Faculty,

You shared your experiences, talents, and interests with us while counseling us on our problems, coaching our athletic teams and supervising our extra-curricula activities.

At times we misunderstood each other, arguing over detentions and late slips. But when the hassels were resolved, we could look back and appreciate the fact that you cared enough to help.

We'd also like to welcome new faculty members: Mr. George Bunn, Sister Carolanne, Mr. Edward Gagnon, Mr. Paul Klenk, Mr. David Lang, Sister Olive and Sister Rosaire.

Thanks again,
The Students

Spaghetti, subs, service specials

"Service with a smile." What more can be asked for? It was the cooks and cleaners who kept this school in order throughout the year. Cafeteria workers nourished both students and faculty with new dishes such as spaghetti and meatballs, chow mein, and an assortment of soups and sandwiches.

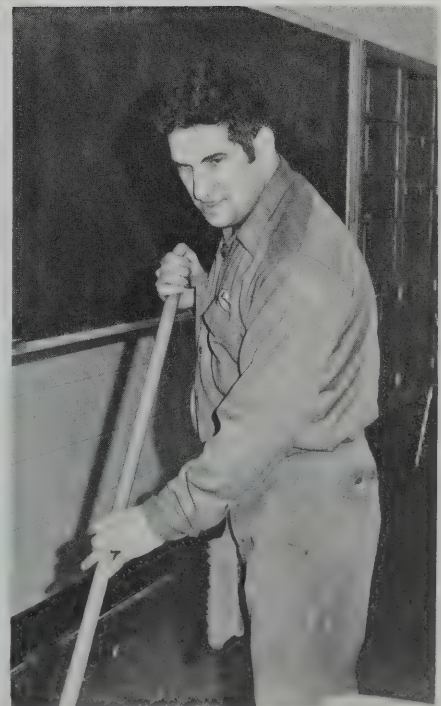

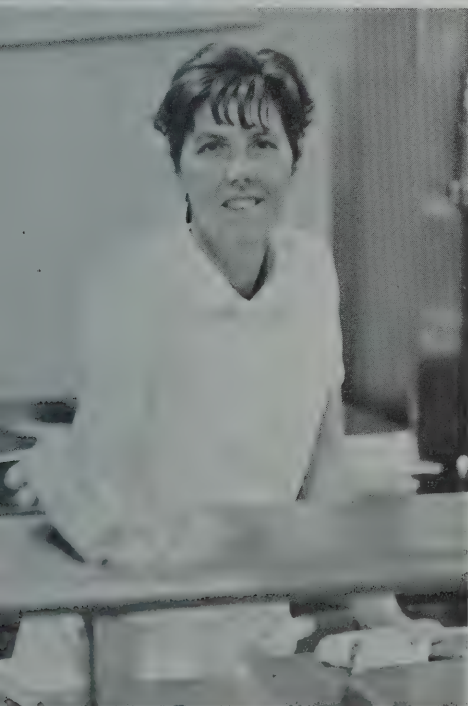

The ladies supported school activities by wearing shamrocks, green socks, and Christmas pins.

The custodians had the job of picking up the remains of a hectic school day. They worked night and day to keep both buildings sparkling.

Frosh's Mac in the box

"Jumping with Spirit" ... The freshmen float captured the hearts of all who spotted Gary McNally popping out of his jack-in-the-box. Dressed in a checkered clown suit, he tossed lollipops to all his fans.

As usual, construction of the Freshmen float was a little slow getting started. Since the class had no officers at the beginning of the year, planning of the project depended on a Senior advisor. In the last days before homecoming, Michael Silva encouraged Freshmen to build a successful float.

During homecoming week, Freshmen participated in the festive activities. Homeroom 117 won the Student Council Trivia contest.

First day jitters bug frosh

As the sun dawned upon a bright morning, a new life awaited the largest class of 207 freshmen Feehanites. The class of '78 learned terms such as "homeroom", "late-slip"; and "5 hours", as seniors offered them passes to the elevator, directions to the fourth floor swimming pool, and the newly-built tennis courts on the roof. But they soon became part of school life, occupying much of the drama club and colorguard, giving their ideas to Flash, and participating in athletics. A "frosh first" happened when Gary McNally became "Feehanite of the month". This class, symbolizing the beginning, awakened pride in all hearts.

Sophs: secret ingredient

Talents, leadership and a dash of enthusiasm spiced up the "class of 77" this year. Sophomores were found singing, dancing and acting in the spring musical and the variety show. Besides decorating the cafeteria with boots and streamers for Christmas, many sophomores helped the spirit committee draw huge, colorful posters for the tunnel walls. Class officers took part in planning the Freshman-Sophomore Social which was enjoyed by a number of underclassmen.

The sophomore recipes for spirit met with success and all-around school support.

Float meeting makes friends

"Could I have some tissue?" "Who's cutting the string?" "How are we supposed to build a float with two square feet of chicken wire?" Sounds like these echoed at sophomore float meetings. Floats were one thing; building them was something else. Making floats was the whole fun of them. Sharing music, conversation, television and work, sophomores sipped hot chocolate and fluffed soon-to-be flowers as their friends munched potato chips during a poker game. Getting acquainted or reacquainted with new or old friends, they unwound into their natural state and found that people really did like them. With homecoming two weeks away, the frame not even started, "Who cares, the other classes don't even have their themes!" "Sophomores' bubbling spirit" pulled them through.

Rising to the future

No longer "silly sophomores," Juniors ascended to new plateaus of Feehan life. Receiving their long-awaited class rings and free studies, Juniors proved worthy of their new status through increased involvement. The cheerleaders, majorettes, future secretaries and future teachers welcomed new Juniors into their ranks. Thinking ahead to college, Juniors took advantage of programs at Feehan and Stonehill, which supplied them with valuable information on many Catholic colleges.

Realizing their underclassmen years had already gone by, Juniors began a swift race against time to experience everything in their remaining two years.

Spirit, right up their alley

"Juniors will bowl you over." This is what their float proclaimed with the original theme of "two down, two to go." It was portrayed by a bowling alley with two pins up, two pins down. The idea continued throughout the year as the "class of '76" stopped the Christmas assembly with a hearty rendition of "All I want for Christmas is My Two Front Teeth."

They danced on and on at their first successful spring prom and were reminded that a third pin was soon to be knocked down. Juniors charged up for each project they participated in and prepared to take on next years "whole new bowling game."

Community and school benefit from senior spirit

at football games the smallest class needed to scream, but throughout the school year, their actions did all the talking for them. Community involvement was rampant as Seniors taught retarded children how to swim, became Junior Achievers and offered valuable assistance to the Attleboro Drug Council. Some students gave additional time and talent to candy-striping, helping out at Nazareth Hall and teaching CCD in local grammar schools; others aided at Madonna Manor. Musical seniors entertained their neighbors with Christmas carols while others provided guitar and organ accompaniment to their congregations at Mass.

Not neglecting their school-based activities seniors made up the larger part of the yearbook staff. Many of their voices were heard and appreciated in the new Folk Group, and their expressive faces were recognized in drama club productions.

Notable scholars, athletes, thespians and Student Council leaders ranked high in the class of '75. It would be impossible to list everyone who has made a significant contribution to Feehan. Specifically, hats off to Claire Paradis, the first female student council president; D.A.R. award winner, Michaela Silva; M.V.P. in the Stang game, Mark Cuddy; N.M. semi-finalist, William Pcolka.

Seniors took time off from hard work to have some good old-fashioned fun by performing in the Christmas assembly. Senior toys told of Santa's coming and this year's reindeers read their special Christmas list to Santa Claus, alias Mr. Loew. The Senior boy's choir captured "Champion Choir" award beating out the male faculty members.

Even though many seniors were kept from many Feehan activities by jobs, they were there in spirit, senior spirit.

Assisting nervous seniors, Michaela Silva and Cynthia Sudjak, prepare for commencement exercises is experienced alumna Jane Oliveira.

First Again

Four faces of a clock captured four years of memories for the seniors as well as a first place tie with the class of '77 in the annual float contest. With their theme, "As Time Goes By," the class of '75 went down in history with two consecutive first places under its belt. Attendants numbered four this year as the voting resulted in a tie. Seniors' last homecoming proved to be an exciting one, full of traditional activities as well as new ideas.

Senior Trials

Senior life was a trying time. College-bound students struggled with S.A.T.'s and Achievement tests. They lived in the guidance center searching for college information. They completed their admissions applications and haunted counselors for transcripts and recommendations.

Throughout the year, Seniors heading for the working world gained on-the-job experience through the work study program which helped in interviews with prospective employees.

In spite of the work and worry, the rewards more than made up for all the sleepless nights.

"Touchdown!" Jubilant fans rejoice as Feehan takes the lead in our Homecoming game against Coyle-Cassidy.

Graduation ...

Alpha ... Omega

As their four years came to a close, the class of 75 united at Graduation to give Feehan an official farewell. Typically, feelings of relief that 'it's finally over', and sadness to see it all end emotionally divided the graduates. Collectively, they were aware that a cycle of their lives was finished. But, recognizing that an end fosters a beginning, the seniors assumed their next roles and continued their lives.

1975 Graduates are Doreen Surprenant, Rosalie Poirier, Celeste Messier, Perry Mayer, Daniel Rogers, Kevin Murphy, and Timothy McAlice.

Senior spirit—#1

"Getting into it", seniors showed their spirit by continuing their involvement in the Student Council, National Honor Society, and sports. New officers of the Drama Club, Band, Flashback and Flash shared their know-how gained from previous experience. Voices of the class of '75 were heard loud and clear in the newly organized Folk Group. Senior ideas flashed as well in the Math Club and the Spanish National Honor Society. Seniors maintained their leadership and left their mark on all aspects of school life.

Talent applied in community

Involving themselves in activities beyond school-oriented ones, Seniors used their spare time to help people within the community. They applied their talents to Junior Achievement, Reach-Out and Attleboro Little Theater. After school jobs range from factory work, nurses' aides and cashiers to the shakemakers at MacDonaldis. In spite of the pressures of homework and college-seeking, the class of '75 continued to sparkle.

"Would you believe a car that runs on flowers?" Some seem to think so as Martha Sullivan and Margaret Ricker decorate.

Seniors star scholastically

New courses highlighted senior schedules in their final year at Feehan. Through Latin and Advanced Chemistry, students prepared themselves for futures in languages and sciences. Senior-oriented classes gave students a better insight into college life. Learning the practical aspects of living independently, girls in Home Management studied the basics of homemaking. Through academics, seniors learned to cope with the old and new problems of today's world.

Photographer catches pro

All portrait photography was done by Mr. Joseph Geoffroy of T.D. Brown Studios, Cranston, Rhode Island. In candid photography, Mr. Geoffroy was assisted by Mr. Thomas Maguire and student photographers, Christopher Reynolds, Dennis Santoro, Thomas Blythe. The Flashback 1975 was enrolled in Columbia Scholastic Press Association, National School Yearbook Association, Quill and Scroll, and Ohio University Workshop.

Flashback 1975 was printed by Paragon Press, Montgomery, Alabama, represented by Mr. Bill Morgan. The 112 pages were printed in black and white on white Satina paper. Endsheets were printed in black and white on white Satina paper. Endsheets were white. The school design was silk screened in gold and emerald green on a white cover.

Headlines throughout the book used 24 point Century type set in capitals and lower case letters. All captions used eight point Century, body copy, ten point. Special effects lettering and divider page headlines were applied presstype 24, 48, 96 point Caslon.

Guided by advisor, Sister Mary Enda Costello, R.S.M., the 1975 Flashback was written, designed, and completed by staff members: Editor-in-chief, Rosemarie Hastings; Managing editor, Susan McCall; Copy editor, Nancee Giovino; assisted by Dirk Belt, Marie Chabot, Suzanne Castro, Dolores McDonagh; Design editor, Robyn Gauthier, assisted by Theresa Castro, Susan Carvalho, Jacqueline Courbron, Timothy Wheelock; Sports editor, Christopher Swift, assisted by Susan Ciarocco; Photography editor, Christopher Reynolds, assisted by Thomas Blythe and Dennis Santoro.

Alpha—

We prepare ...

Meeting and getting acquainted with one another, organizing school spirit into a "scalp 'em day", rehearsing each act of "Gigi" to perfection.

We plan ...

Outlining each football play, mastering band drills on a soggy Saturday morning, debating over the details of an upcoming Student Council project.

We progress ...

Waiting for the final outcome, relying on our decisions, trusting in our God.

Omega—

We debut ...

Making good friends, dressing in bandannas and feathers, performing out play for three appreciative audiences.

We learn ...

Flocking to the holes in our defensive line, stepping a little higher with the musical beat, discussing suggestions for next year.

We give thanks ...

Reviewing our successes and our failures, appreciating the strength we have prayed for.

Alpha—

We dream ...

Looking forward to "next times", fantasizing each imaginative idea, setting another far-reaching goal.

We hope ...

Asking our God for continual strength, letting our Christian faith guide our endeavors.

Once more ... We begin.
